Message from the Founders

I CAN do all things through Christ who strengthens me!

Philippians 4:13. This is the mantra we have been living for the last two years as Rob continues to fight against glioblastoma brain cancer, a disease that should have already taken his life. Today, through Can't Never Could, we also continue to fight for others who experience brain cancer, brain tumors, brain illnesses, other cancers, and adversities.

When we began Can't Never Could, we never imagined it would bring so much joy and so much pain at the same time. Our joy comes from being able to share the love and hope of Christ with others. This has been a tremendous blessing! We have met so many fellow warriors who inspire us and make us better people for knowing them. Our pain comes when we lose one of these warriors. Unfortunately, we have lost too many over the last two years. The holes they leave in our hearts are filled only by our knowledge that they are now fully healed.

Your support has been instrumental in allowing us to bring hope in Christ to others. Because of your gifts, we have given generously in a short two-year period. To God be the glory! Your gifts and His blessings are evident through the works of Can't Never Could.

Thank you for allowing us to fulfill our purpose: Can't Never Could, Inc. is a non-profit corporation dedicated to helping individuals and groups who are facing adversity and personal battles. Through monetary donations, support, and faith in Jesus Christ, Can't Never Could wishes to instill determination and hope to those who are experiencing these challenges. Can't Never Could makes these contributions with the desire to glorify Christ who provides strength in all circumstances.

Your continued support allows Can't Never Could to be successful. Your generosity is a testament to the faithful God we serve!

Love in Christ,
Rob and Christi Estes

New for 2016: "Can't Never Could" Cares packages

As part of our ongoing mission to spread the love of Christ and offer hope to those facing adversity and personal battles, Can't Never Could will be launching a new program beginning in January of 2016. "Can't Never Could" Cares packages will be placed in hospitals and clinics to be given out by hospital social workers, nurse navigators, and others who come in contact with cancer patients who have financial needs. The purpose of the care package is twofold. 1) To let cancer patients know about the financial help that can be provided by Can't Never Could; 2) To give support and hope to those facing adversity.

We hope that these care packages will spread the word about CNC so that we can help more people. Each package will contain an embossed journal, two CNC rubber bracelets, an inspirational book, a note from the Can't Never Could founders, and an application for assistance.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Would you or your business or civic organization like to help Can't Never Could? We can always use sponsors for our activities. We can use sponsors for our signature events (the March fund-raising dinner, the Georgia Cup, Bike for Brains), and we can also use sponsors for the everyday work of Can't Never Could, such as providing "Can't Never Could" Cares packages. We provide these free of charge to those newly diagnosed with cancer. For more information on the different sponsorship opportunities available, please contact cantnevercouldinc@gmail.com.

Newnan native Denise Jackson is keynote speaker for Can't Never Could dinner on March 18, 2016

Can't Never Could is pleased to announce that Denise Jackson will be the speaker for CNC's dinner fundraiser at The Newnan Centre on Friday, March 18, 2016.

Denise Jackson was born and raised in Newnan, Georgia. The "late surprise" to her middle-aged parents, Dan and Nell Jackson (yes, her maiden name was Jackson), Denise and her twin brother, Danny, grew up with sister Jane and brother Ron. The Jackson family were faithful members of Unity Baptist Church, which profoundly shaped Denise's faith, even as a young child. Denise was an overachiever in academics and athletics in high school – a pretty cheerleader who attracted Alan Jackson's attention at the young age of 16.

High school sweethearts, Denise and Alan married when Denise was 19 and Alan 21. Denise completed her BS degree in Early Childhood Education in three years at West Georgia College. She taught second and third grades at Atkinson Elementary School, the same school she attended as a child.

In 1985, Alan and Denise packed all their earthly possessions into a small U-Haul trailer and drove to Nashville to pursue Alan's dream of being a country music singer. While Alan wrote songs, performed at small clubs all over the country and shopped his demos to record producers in Music City, Denise switched careers and became a flight attendant for Piedmont Airlines. This new career ultimately led to her meeting Glen Campbell in the Atlanta airport and Alan's first paid writing contract. She continued working until the birth of their first daughter in 1990, which happily coincided with Alan's signing a record contract with Arista Records – the beginning of his extraordinary career that now exceeds 25 years.

Denise and Alan have three beautiful daughters, Mattie (25), Ali (22) and Dani (18). As they embrace their new season in life as "Empty Nesters," they look forward to spending time at their North Georgia lake home and in South Florida, as well as being their girls' biggest supporters in all their personal endeavors.

Although Denise has lived her adult life in the spotlight of today's celebrity-driven media as the wife of a country music superstar and all the perks that come with that lifestyle, she has also weathered seasons of loss, heartbreak and adversity – specifically the painful loss of her beloved brother, Ron, to suicide in 1994, the brief separation from Alan in 1998, and most recently, her 2010 cancer diagnosis. Through it all, her Christian faith has been the anchor that has kept her grounded in the good times and has been her lifeline in seasons of pain and adversity, as she chronicled in her 2007 New York Times Bestselling autobiography, It's All About Him, Finding the Love of My Life.

Denise believes that her life's calling now is to be an encourager to others facing the same life-altering experiences that she has faced. She passionately professes the power of God to heal, redeem and restore anything in our lives that is not as it should be – as we take hold of the promises found in His Word through prayer and believing.

First Bike for Brains is a success!

Our first Bike for Brains at Gene Evans' Great South Harley-Davidson in Newnan on October 17, 2015 was a success! This benefit motorcycle and Jeep ride for Can't Never Could included door prizes, raffles, and food.

The weather was perfect, the route was beautiful, the door prizes were plentiful, and the food was great! We are so thankful for those who came out this year and look forward to an even bigger event next year.

At right is a special rider who is also one of our most recent recipients, Sharon Blok. Sharon has been dealing with multiple brain tumors since the 1990s. She has been through so much, including surgeries, radiation, and vision issues, just to name a few. The Bike for Brains ride was the first time she had ridden her bike in three years. Her sister Robin was there to cheer her on, and the tears were flowing. We thank God for the opportunity to give hope and love!

Now, let's make next year's bike ride even bigger and better!

Second Annual Georgia Cup held at Big Red Oak Plantation

Can't Never Could hosted its Second Annual Georgia Cup Registered Sporting Clays Shoot September 18-20, 2015 at Big Red Oak Plantation in Gay. Sporting clays shooting has been compared to "golf with a shotgun," and participants in the Georgia Cup at Big Red Oak Plantation got to shoot clay targets on a 2,500-acre shooting preserve. The Quail Course benefited Can't Never Could, and there was also a second clays course, the Pheasant Course, as well as a separate course for FITASC shooting, a more challenging form of clay target shooting. The Georgia Cup is a qualifying event for the National Sporting Clays Association (NSCA).

According to the NSCA, the sport dates to the early 1900s in England when trap shooting used live pigeons. Clay targets were introduced, and the sport took on the form it has today. Rather than using standardized distances, target angles and target sizes, sporting clays courses are designed to simulate the hunting of ducks, pheasants and rabbits.

Jay Heap was among those shooting in the event and said on our Facebook page, "Great shoot this weekend. Thanks for having such a wonderful event at the premier clay shooting facility in Georgia. My first attempt at FITASC was enjoyable. The course was outstanding."

President and CEO of Big Red Oak Plantation is CNC founder Rob Estes, who is a seventh-generation family member to work on the land.

In addition to the sporting clays shooting, the event also included an educational display and other materials about CNC. Members of the organization were on site to answer questions and greet guests who were participating.

After the event, Christi Estes said, "I am exhausted, but my heart is full of gratitude for the continued support and help that this foundation allows us to offer thanks to generous donors."

Vince and Barbara Dooley, Dr. Erin Dunbar headline 2015 Can't Never Could Dinner

The second annual Can't Never Could dinner fundraiser was held at The Newnan Centre on March 27, 2015. The speakers were former University of Georgia head football coach Vince Dooley, his wife, Barbara, who is a breast cancer survivor, and Dr. Erin Dunbar, MD, one of Rob's doctors and a neuro-oncologist at Piedmont Atlanta Hospital.

The evening began with Rob telling his story of being diagnosed with glioblastoma following days of fighting headaches and sleeplessness. He soon learned he had a five-centimeter tumor in his brain that required emergency surgery, a tumor he was told might be cancerous.

Once cancer was confirmed, Rob asked how he could fight the cancer. He was initially told, "You can't." He responded with the now well-known line learned from his mother, "Can't never could," that she used to encourage him to give things a try when he was a child. Rob said he combined that phrase learned in childhood with the Bible verse he learned from his high school football team's chaplain, Philippians 4:13—"I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

Rob introduced Dunbar to the audience and called her part of his "dream team" of doctors helping him fight cancer. Dunbar spoke of the importance of teamwork in treating cancer. Every patient is unique, she said, and the doctor's job is to coach each patient through their personal journey. She also spoke of the advances in medicine and technology that are now helping patients.

When Vince and Barbara Dooley took the stage, she talked about the importance of laughter and love in fighting cancer. She recalled that after she learned of her diagnosis, she turned to her husband and told him to beware of women bringing casseroles.

And Vince Dooley himself told of learning he had a disease that had affected his arteries after he felt a sharp pain in his chest one year during a Georgia-Vanderbilt game. Dooley later had angioplasty, and he told of seeing photos of his arteries on TV for a week. That prompted one of the more humorous comments of the night when Barbara said, "I just praise God you didn't have hemorrhoids."

Also speaking at the dinner was Rachel Massey, who lost her husband, Franklin, to brain cancer. Inspired by Can't Never Could, she went on to found the Franklin Massey Legacy Fund, which financially assists those who have recently lost loved ones to cancer.

Next year's dinner will be March 18, 2016 at The Newnan Centre and will feature Newnan native Denise Jackson.

Recipient Spotlight:

Sharon Blok and Rob Estes

Sharon Blok of Marietta, who was first diagnosed with a brain tumor in the late nineties, learned about Can't Never Could through her sister, Robin Smith of Newnan, and Sharon got to ride her motorcycle in the Bike for Brains benefit ride for CNC on October 17, 2015.

"I was a little nervous, but I was very comfortable with the fellas," Sharon said, adding that she had a great time at the ride.

"My bike has sat for three years," she said.

Sharon had actually taken her bike to the shop and intended to put it up for sale when she got a call from her sister, Robin, who had only recently learned about Can't Never Could. Robin called and told her she needed to participate in the ride, and since Robin "understands more than anybody" what she's gone through, Sharon signed up—and is glad she did.

In 1998, Sharon went to the ER when she suddenly lost her vision. She had an MRI and was told the doctor would get back with her within two or three days. She got home only to find a message on her answering machine saying for her to turn around and go back to the hospital. She was told, "You have a brain tumor."

"I had surgery for removal," she said. Sharon had a shunt put in from her head to her stomach, and it has been replaced once. She later learned that her surgery did not get all of the tumor, so the remaining tumor was treated with radiation. As a result, she suffered from radiation necrosis, a complication from radiation in which the radiated brain matter around the tumor dies. This can cause many negative side effects such as sight problems, cognitive deficits and brain swelling.

Sharon said she is pleased she was well enough to participate in the Bike for Brains, and she is especially grateful to Can't Never Could for a grant she recently received.

"They gave me a grant which actually purchased my (new) glasses," she said. "My current glasses were six years old." And today, her vision is back to where it was before she discovered her brain tumor.

Sharon's sister, Robin Smith, said it was something of a fluke that she ended up learning about Can't Never Could. Her church, First Baptist in Gay, Ga., was cooking the barbecue at CNC's Georgia Cup back in September. Robin was there on behalf of her church and wasn't even aware of Can't Never Could. That day, she got to meet founders Rob and Christi Estes and was surprised to learn that Rob has battled brain cancer. That struck a chord with her because of her sister, Sharon, who has battled brain tumors.

Robin said she had never met Rob or Christi Estes before the Georgia Cup, but in talking with Christi about her sister, she learned that Can't Never Could accepted grant applications from those with brain tumors as well as those with brain cancer. "I was so excited," Robin said.

Sharon has incurred a lot of medical expenses and hesitates to even go to the doctor, Robin said, and following a recent appointment with her eye doctor, Sharon faced a $750 bill. Sharon applied for a CNC grant, and Robin recalled that at the beginning of October, her sister was notified that she had received a grant of $1,000.

"I started crying," Robin said. She hadn't followed up on the application with Christi because "I didn't want her to think I was stalking her," she joked, but she was so thrilled that the grant covered the entire expense of her sister's new eyeglasses—and then some.

"You just don't know how good God is," Robin said. "God puts the right people in your life at the right time."

Robin said she is grateful to Can't Never Could for helping her sister, and through Can't Never Could, she has also seen her own faith strengthened.

Sharon Blok is back at work—"She was insistent on going back to work"—and Robin says, "It's just been a miracle."

Robin has also become a great advocate of this organization, sharing with others how much she appreciates Can't Never Could.

"I tell everybody," she said.

Finding 'a glimmer of hope' through Can't Never Could

Tatyana Gluschak said she finds it pretty amazing how her family connected with Can't Never Could.

Nine years ago, her husband, Yemanuil, was employed as a service technician when he did a job for David E. Johnson, a man in Dawsonville, Ga. One of the founders of Chestatee State Bank, David gave Yemanuil a generous tip and said if he ever needed anything to give him a call.

Years later, Yemanuil began having seizures one day that left him unable to drive or work. He was diagnosed with inoperable grade 3 brain cancer in July of 2014. The family fell on hard times due to his inability to work during his treatment.

In Yemanuil's wallet was that old business card from David Johnson, and Yemanuil called the number on it, only to learn from David's wife that he had passed away from a brain tumor in 2014.

"We of course apologized" for the call, Tatyana said, but Malinda Johnson was very gracious and got the family in touch with Can't Never Could. She already knew about the organization, and in fact, David Johnson's obituary requested donations to Can't Never Could in lieu of flowers.

Today, Tatyana said, her husband's condition is being controlled through medication, and she says the help they received from Can't Never Could "was just unbelievable."

"We could not even imagine God would be so amazing and send your help during this time," she told CNC. "We see through your hands that he cares so much for our family, and no request is too big or small for him! We are very humbled and grateful to each and every one of you that made this possible. May God richly bless you!"

One other reason the help from Can't Never Could "was such a blessing," she added, was that it gave them "a glimmer of hope" to have someone besides friends and family care about their situation. "They've been the only foundation that has helped us besides our family and church," she said.

And she remains amazed that a nine-year-old business card led them to call a man whose kindness, even after he was gone, made it possible for the Gluschak family to receive help from Can't Never Could.
